April 1 hike unlikely

By DAN PHILLIPS

One of the most important actions taken by the Senate yesterday was its decision not to act on proposed legislation that would increase the Commonwealth's minimum wage on April 1.

A House bill proposing the April wage hike was expected to be on the agenda for yesterday's Senate session, but it was not.

Saipan Sen. Juan P. "Morgen" Tenorio said the senators were apparently "not ready to entertain the wage bill." He said it looked like "either the effective date of the increase will be changed or the bill won't go through."

Rota Sen. Eusebio A. Hocog agreed that the Senate

wanted more time to consider the wage issue before making a decision.

"Personally, I suggested that since some staff employees from the U.S. Congress are expected to visit next week, we should have an opportunity to sit down with them and talk about the wage issue before we make a decision," Hocog said.

"We need to study the wage issue very carefully, and if the reason for seeking an increase is because the federal government is telling us to do it, I think that is wrong," he said.

The Rota senator said that if the CNMI is going to raise its minimum wage rate, it should do so for the benefit of its own residents, "not because (U.S. Interior Department Insular Affairs Director Al) Stayman tells us we have to do it by a certain time or we may face federal action."

The CNMI's $2.75 hourly minimum wage was scheduled to increase by 30 cents an hour on Jan. 1, but the Legislature

U.S. court: Micronesians not aliens

By DAN PHILLIPS

Commonwealth immigration officials were told by a federal judge on Tuesday that they can't treat citizens of other Micronesian island nations as aliens in the Northern Marianas.

U.S. District Court Judge Alex R. Munson made the ruling in a lawsuit that was filed last year by two Micronesian women and their husbands, who are both from Bangladesh, against the CNMI government.

One of the women, Palauan citizen Margie B. Syed, claimed that her husband, Islam W. Syed, had his "non-alien immediate relative" permit changed to an "alien immediate relative" permit by the CNMI government pursuant to an immigration regulation that was based on a legal opinion issued by a lawyer from the CNMI Attorney General's Office.

The other woman, Federated States of Micronesia citizen Temsina Ludwig, claimed that her husband, Abdur R. Chowdhury also had his permit changed into an "alien immediate relative" permit due to the same immigration regulation.

According to Munson's ruling, the immigration regulation started with a Sept. 13, 1994, memo sent by Assistant Attorney General Henry Wigglesworth to then-acting Immigration Chief George Camacho.

The memo stated, in effect, that any person who is not a U.S. citizen, U.S. national or "permanent resident" under CNMI law should be deemed an alien.

The memo was then used as a basis for a decision by the CNMI Department of Labor and Immigration to "reclassify Micronesians from non-alien status to alien status," Munson stated.

He also noted, "No CNMI government agency or instrumentality ever held any public hearing or otherwise took any steps to inform other Micronesians and/or their non-U.S. citizen spouses that their status had been changed from 'non-alien' to 'alien', and that their spouses' status had been changed from 'non-alien immediate relative' to 'alien immediate relative'."

Privatization pays off for gov't

As part of its program of reorganization, so far this year the Commonwealth Health Center has received more than $466,000 from its laboratory privatization contract with Clinical Laboratories of Hawaii, Inc., according to the governor's office.

In January, CLH paid $435,295 for the purchase of CHC inventory and equipment as well as space rental for the month. In February, the company paid $11,958 for February space rental and February and March government housing rental. It has also paid $11,958 for March' space rental.

The entire sum will be deposited in the general fund account, according to health secretary Dr. Isamu Abraham.
